Chinese, Indian and Persian Art In The Los Angeles County Museum

In line with the newly adopted policy to devote each issue of the Quarterly to one particular aspect of the Museum, the present issue illustrates some of the most important objects selected from the Museum's collection of Chinese, Indian and Persian art.

All the objects illustrated in this booklet, except for the early eighteenth century Buddhist Priest Robes, the Cape, and Headdress given by Miss Bella Mabury, have been acquired by gift or purchase within the last eight years. Among the private donors who have so generously contributed to the growth of the Museum's Far and Near Eastern collections must be mentioned, aside from Miss Mabury, Mr. Leo Meyer, Mr. Jack G. Kuhrts, Mr. Frederick T. Fuller, Mr. Lynn B. Cayot, several anonymous donors, and Mr. J. Paul Getty, the latter being responsible for the two magnificent early sixteenth century Persian carpets (Nos. 34-35). These carpets, the "Coronation" and the Ardebil carpet, are two of the most famous Persian carpets in existence, and the Museum is justly proud to be their owner.

The Museum's collection of Indian and Chinese art has developed slowly and only comparatively recently, but steady progress is being made, as shown by the illustrations contained in this booklet. As a result of generous donations on the part of private donors and increasing Museum funds, the permanent collection of Indian and Chinese art today includes a few, very important examples of sculpture, bronze, lacquer, and ceramics, supplemented by a number of long-term loans. A slow but significant beginning has been made, but ever-larger public and private funds will be necessary for the future development and expansion of the Museum's collection of Far and Near Eastern art, and in order to raise its standard to that of other museums in cities of comparable size. And eventually the Museum must have a collection of Japanese art, as yet barely represented in the Museum, in spite of this area's geographic proximity to Japan and high percentage of citizens of Japanese descent.
